

HIGH-LEVEL FOOD SYSTEMS EVENT

Leveraging Change: The Role of Donors in Food Systems Transformation

9 September 2021, 12:30-15:00 CEST | Register for the virtual event

Donors play a key role in supporting initiatives that form the foundation for collaborative efforts across food systems through their innovations, programming and investments.

This independent Food Systems event of the Global Donor Platform for Rural Development (GDPRD), co-hosted by the European Commission, IFAD and USAID, is a contribution to ensure donors and their partners collaborate to realize the full leveraging potential of donor funding.

Optimizing the catalytic and leveraging potential of donor support will be key in responding to the outcomes of the FSS.

Donor investments in food systems are relatively small compared to the investments of farmers, food sector businesses and national governments, but they are crucial for enabling and incentivizing other actors to play their part.

The event will also launch the GDPRD stocktaking report "Donor contributions to food systems", a mapping of the patterns and scale of food systems-related funding and an assessment of the extent donors are embracing a food system framing and aligning their investments to the UN FSS Action Tracks.

Key conclusions include the importance of donor funding being focused on catalysing systemic change to be effective. This entails that:

- Limited donor funding needs to be used to help address underlying structural constraints to a more equitable, nutritious and sustainable food system.
- Donor investments are unique in their contribution in setting global and national agendas, to influence policy and deliver global public goods including research.
- Donors need to be focused on mobilising additional investments from national governments and the private sector.
- Donor investments and programmes need to be designed and managed with an understanding of how complex adaptive systems behave.
- Food systems transformation will require societal-wide understanding and willingness for change and for donors to focus on the processes of change and how this can be catalysed and supported.

The high-level food systems event will:

- Highlight key elements of donor perspectives on the food systems agenda in response to the UN FSS.
- Discuss and seek agreement on the key priorities for future donor focus.
- Discuss some of the most effective modalities for donor coordination going forward.

The Global Donor Platform for Rural Development (GDPRD) is a network/partnership platform of 40 bilateral and multilateral development agencies, international financial institutions, intergovernmental organizations and foundations. It was established in 2003 to lobby for increased public and private investments in agriculture and rural development.

Among its notable achievements in recent years, the Platform has contributed to some important milestones in the international land governance agenda, such as the Voluntary Guidelines on the Responsible Governance of Tenure of Land, Fisheries, and Forests in the Context of National Food Security (VGGT) by the Committee on World Food Security (CFS) in 2012. The Platform has also spearheaded some important advocacy initiatives, including some in support of achieving SDG2, such as Ceres2030 or 50x2030.
